Nicholas Longworth Is in Critical Condition

SPEAKER OF HOUSE IS SINKING RAPIDLY, DOCTORS DECLARE

"Outlook Is Extremely Unfavorable," Says Last Bulletin From Bedside of Stricken Leader at Aiken, S. C.

THREE PHYSICIANS IN CONSULTATION

Wife of Ohio Congress- man Aids Corps of Nurses in Fight to Save Husband's Life.

AIKEN, S. C., April 8.—(AP)—Pneumonia tonight threatened the life of Speaker Nicholas Longworth, who came here ten days ago for a spring vacation.

Developing late Monday from a heavy cold, the disease made rapid headway and, despite every effort of science to forestall a crisis, the veteran Ohio congressman and son-in-law of Theodore Roosevelt, grew steadily weaker today.

Aiding the three physicians and staff of nurses who sought to halt the malady was the speaker's wife, Alice Roosevelt Longworth. She arrived here by train this morning, after having been notified in Washington of her husband's illness.

Until tonight reports from the patient's room in the winter home of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis, of Washington, whom he was visiting, had been cheerful. But a different note crept into the early bulletins tonight. The attending physicians for the first time admitted that the condition of the 61-year-old lawmaker was "critical."

Still less encouragement was expressed after a consultation among the two Aiken physicians, who have been attending Speaker Longworth, and a specialist from Augusta, Ga. Dr. R. H. Wilds, of Aiken, admitted there was apprehension of the illness might "take a fatal turn" during the night.

In a formal bulletin the physicians said: "Mr. Longworth has grown rapidly worse during the day, and the outlook is extremely unfavorable."

It was signed by Dr. Wilds and Dr. Thomas G. Brooks, of Aiken, and Dr. V. P. Sydenstricker, the Augusta specialist, who has been making two trips daily to see the patient.

Oxygen was used last night to aid the speaker's respiration, but at the time the physicians said that fact did not indicate a critical condition.

Four nurses were assigned to the case yesterday, and Mrs. Longworth brought a fifth with her today.

OFFICIAL WASHINGTON SHOWS DEEP ANXIETY

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP)—President Hoover led official Washington today in expressing anxiety over the condition of Speaker Nicholas Longworth, who is ill with pneumonia at Aiken, S. C.

The president directed his personal physician, Captain Joel M. Boone, to keep him advised of the Ohioan's condition. Mainly, the speaker's office was deluged with queries from cabinet officers, senators, representatives, and Capitol messengers and scrubs.

From his home in Texas, Representative Garner, democratic leader and a close personal friend of Longworth for 25 years, wired friends in Washington for information on the speaker's illness.

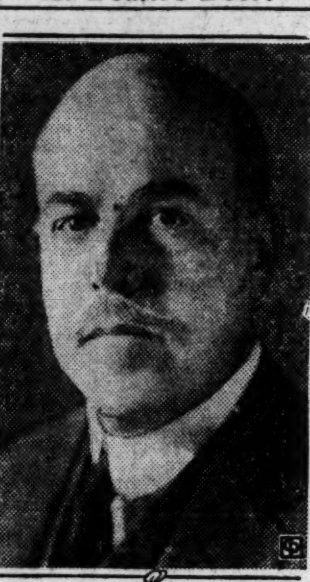

The crises was expected within 24 hours. Longworth went to Aiken about 10 days ago to play golf and rest. Friends said he was suffering from a cold before his departure. Pneumonia developed late Monday.

ST. LOUIS PASTOR IS CALLED HERE

Second Baptist Church Pulpit Offered to Dr. Ryland Knight.

Dr. Ryland Knight, pastor of the Delmar Avenue Baptist church, St. Louis, Mo., and one of the best known ministers in the middle west, Wednesday night was extended a call to the pastorate of the Second Baptist church here, the action taking place at a special conference of the church's congregation.

The Atlanta church has been without a regular pastor since February of this year, when Dr. E. M. Poter resigned on the occasion of his seventieth birthday. Since that time Dr. Poter has been serving as supply pastor.

The call to Dr. Knight was extended on recommendation of a survey committee appointed some time ago. In the event of his acceptance he will assume his new duties here on June 1, 1931, it was said.

Dr. Knight is a graduate of Princeton University, obtaining his A.B. degree there in 1896, and his theological degree at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1899. In 1910 he took a year's postgraduate work at the University of Virginia and was awarded his degree of doctor of divinity.

He was ordained a minister of the Southern Baptist church in 1900 and held successively the following pastorates: First church, Ashland, Ky.; Calvary church, Richmond, Va.; First church, Clarksville, Tenn.; Emmanuel church, Nashville, Tenn.; and, since September, 1925, Delmar Avenue church, of St. Louis.

Dr. Knight has made an outstanding record in St. Louis, having added 100 members during the last year, and having led a successful campaign which culminated in the erection of a $160,000 educational addition to the church. At previous pastorates he had built three churches.

He is a democrat, Mason, trustee of the Baptist Bible Institute of New Orleans, trustee of the Missouri Baptist Southern of St. Louis, member of the executive committee of the Metropolitan Church Federation of St. Louis, and a colonel on the staff of the governor of Tennessee in 1923-25.

Dr. Knight has been ably assisted in his career by his wife, who before her marriage on July 20, 1925, was Miss Bess Acree, of Clarksville, Tenn. Mrs. Knight is a Virginian by birth, and her father at one time was pastor of the Baptist church in Griffin, Ga. She is particularly active in Sunday school work.

Dr. Knight is a native of Shelbyville, Ky., where he was born on February 20, 1876.

Wrecker of Train Given Life Term

HENRIETTA, Okla., April 8.—(AP) George Darnell, who pleaded guilty to causing the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad passenger train wreck near here 18 months ago in which 13 lives were lost, was sentenced by Superior Judge J. H. Swan today to life imprisonment.

Medium Who Won Conan Doyle To Spiritualism Confesses Fake

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP)—Asserting that "people want to be fooled" and that for 11 years he had done just that, Nino Pecarro, "mystic" whom Sir Arthur Conan Doyle admitted won him over to spiritualism, tonight declared that his seances "were all a fake."

"I've never seen a ghost and don't believe anyone else ever has," he said. "I'm sick and tired of giving seances and having spiritualism reap the profit. When ghosts appear at my seances they are Nino Pecarro in the flesh."

To prove his point he allowed himself to be securely bound, then freed himself and wrote two messages. One was "from Doyle" and the other "from Houdini." The handwriting compared

ROSE AND HOPKINS TO TESTIFY TODAY IN J. B. DOVE TRIAL

First Day's Witnesses Tell of Paying Money to Defendant in Effort to Obtain Federal Jobs.

Josiah T. Rose, collector of internal revenue, and Lindsey Hopkins, who headed a special patronage committee for Georgia, are expected to take the stand this morning in the trial of John B. Dove, locomotive inspector, on charges of bartering federal offices.

Testimony by seven witnesses that they paid money to Dove in connection with efforts to obtain federal jobs Wednesday afternoon was followed by an unsuccessful defense attempt to show that the usual method of getting appointive federal offices has been by purchasing them.

Judge E. Marvin Underwood, presiding in federal district court, ruled against the defense when M. S. Hayes, who is assisting Dove in the case, asked Postmaster E. K. Large to describe the method by which he got his job. District Attorney Clint W. Hager objected to the question, and Hayes said that he was seeking to show that payments to party leaders are generally required for appointment to federal offices.

Judge Underwood held that even should such a practice be shown, it still would be an illegal practice and would not affect legality of Dove's alleged actions. Postmaster Large was excused from the witness stand without having spoken a word.

Dove's case may reach the jury this afternoon. The government rested after introducing witnesses who testified to paying money to Dove for federal jobs which were not delivered, and Dove began introducing witnesses preliminary to the case.

J. W. Arnold, of Athens, republican national committeeman from Georgia; G. F. Flanders, of Swainsboro, and E. R. Johnson, postmaster at Washington, testified that Dove held a conference with a man in a room at a Washington hotel during the Hoover inauguration, but that they did not know who the man was. Dove attempted to show that the man was an assistant of Bascom Slem, secretary to ex-President Coolidge. Flanders said that the man was Dove and the unidentified man related to his efforts to be confirmed as national committeeman.

Called Hoover "Herbert." Government witnesses testified that Dove represented himself as having great influence in Washington and as familiar enough with the president to call him "Herbert." Dove told them they knew everybody in Washington, and all he had to do to get a hearing at any government office was to knock on the door, the witnesses said.

J. P. Benson testified that he paid Dove $500 to obtain the College Park postmaster's job for his son, Ernest. Charles O'Neal told of paying Dove $275 to get his son, Wade, appointed deputy clerk of federal court. C. E. Westbrook said he paid Dove $1,000 for an appointment as collector of internal revenue. Three other witnesses said they paid Dove money.

A. F. Knowles, said that he chipped in and paid Dove $100 to go to Washington and try to get back their post-office jobs. J. M. Burdett said that he paid Dove $100 as a contribution to the party in connection with Dove's promise to get him the job of assistant custodian of the federal building. All the witnesses said they failed to get the jobs.

Reeves, returning to his home at 790 Delmar avenue after visiting a friend, noticed a man standing in front of his stand, he said. Reeves said he drove around the block and then returned to the shop to find Gazaway inside. The intruder refused to throw up his hands and Reeves fired, he told police. His weapon was a .25-caliber automatic.

When police were summoned Gazaway was found inside. He had been shot through the head, the bullet entering over the right eye and emerging on the other side of his head. He was conscious, however, and gave the officers his name. At Grady hospital his condition was pronounced as critical.

Officers said that Gazaway's pockets were stuffed with cigarettes and small change and that a large amount of stock was stacked by the window. Reeves was questioned by police and it was thought at an early hour this morning that he would not be held.

Widow of Slain Campbell County Officer Becomes Georgia's First Woman Sheriff

FAIRBURN, Ga., April 8.—Mrs. Lula Camp, widow of Sheriff Thomas W. Camp, who was killed last Friday by a negro prisoner, today became the first woman to hold a sheriff's office in Georgia.

Mrs. Camp was sworn in by Ordinary W. S. McLarin, and immediately prepared to assume the duties of her office.

Mrs. Camp's induction into office was witnessed by her late husband's aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Camp, 81 and 78 years of age, respectively, and two daughters.

Mrs. Camp said that she plans to carry on the work which her husband performed for the past six years. She will continue to live at the jail, but will not take an active part in the more strenuous duties of the office.

Most of her time will be spent in the bookkeeping and jail administrative portions of the work. Her appointment is to fill out the unexpired term of Mr. Camp, and an election will probably be held on May 13.

"I have no ambitions in connection with the office except to do my work as well as possible until the term expires," she said. "I shall certainly not run for sheriff after that. My husband was greatly interested in his work of maintaining order in Campbell county and I want to try to perform his duties to the extent of my ability."

Mrs. Camp is a native of Campbell county. Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Camp, parents of Sheriff Camp, also reside at the jail residence. Prior to their late son's election they lived in another part of the county, about 10 miles from Fairburn. Recently they celebrated their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary.

Appointment of Mrs. Camp as sheriff recalled a recent instance in the history of the county. Citizens of Fairburn paid him tribute as a man kindly to his charges but inflexible in duty. He was killed as he was trying to place under arrest a 18-year-old negro, Fred Griffin, who wrested his pistol from him and shot him to death. The negro was later captured and is now being held in Fulton county tower on a charge of murder.

CLAUDE BUCHANAN PAYS FINE OF $300 ON PLEA OF GUILTY

Former Alderman From Eighth Ward Admits Receiving $500 Bribe in Sewer Deal.

For the second time in as many days, defense colors were struck Wednesday in the city hall "graft" cases when ex-Alderman Claude E. Buchanan, following the example Tuesday of ex-Councilman T. Frank Callaway, pleaded guilty to bribery and was fined $300 with the alternative of a six-month chain gang sentence. Judge John D. Humphries received the Buchanan plea.

Buchanan's fine was paid Wednesday morning. Callaway was given several days in which to raise the money, and his fine will be paid today or Friday, it was said.

Plea of Buchanan and Callaway followed the conviction last week of ex-Alderman W. Guy Dobbs on two counts of bribery. Guilty pleas have been entered by a number of defendants in the so-called city graft cases, these including L. L. Wallis, ex-superintendent of parks, who paid a fine, and ex-Councilman Harry York, who is serving a sentence.

Buchanan pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving $500 from the Realty Sales Corporation in connection with a council resolution cancelling sewer assessments. He denied any wrongdoing in a statement issued at the time of the indictment, but resigned from council. The state Wednesday, through Assistant Solicitor General Walter McCraw, agreed to leniency for Buchanan.

Callaway Tuesday pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving a bribe of $100 from P. O. Hebert for his good-will toward fire equipment firms in the purchases for the fire department, and was given the option of paying a $200 fine or serving six months. Callaway resigned as a deputy under Sheriff James I. Lowry before entering his plea.

Cases of Howard C. McCutcheon and J. T. Osburn, former members of general council, charged with bribery, are on next week's calendar of Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy's division of court.

One city policeman Wednesday was cleared of a charge of involuntary manslaughter, while the case of another policeman charged with murder was set for deliberation in Fulton superior court.

R. R. Davis Wednesday was acquitted of involuntary manslaughter in a case involving the death of J. S. White more than a year ago. The charge against Davis grew out of a collision at Forrest avenue and Butler streets between the policeman's automobile and a motorcycle ridden by White. Davis was tried in Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy's division of court.

Motion for a mistrial in the case of Odus Hewell, city policeman charged with murder of Jake Mink, Decatur street merchant, late Wednesday afternoon was overruled by Judge W. E. H. Searcy, presiding in Fulton superior court, and testimony will be resumed this morning.

The mistrial motion was offered by Defense Attorney Sam D. Hewitt while Special Prosecutor William Schley Howard was questioning Berry Eisenback, a brother-in-law of Harry Mink. Howard said that the state was trying to show that the officers had refused to take the statement of A. L. Bundy following the shooting, and Hewitt introduced the motion.

Judge Searcy instructed the jury not to pay "any attention to what Mr. Howard says." The special prosecutor continued in Page 6, Column 8.

CHICAGO, April 8.—(AP)—A speedy reorganization of the Chicago municipal government was promised tonight by Mayor-elect Anton J. Cermak, who expected to be inducted to office tomorrow.

The man who beat William Hale Thompson by 191,916 votes in Tuesday's election spent most of the day selecting men for the more important jobs out of the 12,000 appointive positions he must fill. He gave but little of his time to the reading of congratulatory messages.

"I promised to clean out the city hall," he said, "and I'm going to lose no time doing it. The bums and hoodlums who hang around in the corridors and make the city hall look like a cheap lodging house, on Saturday night are going to be swept right out."

With completion of the official canvass late this afternoon in record time, Cermak planned to take office tomorrow. A call for a special meeting of the city council to approve his plans was expected.

PROHIBITION ISSUE IS STATE PROBLEM, SAYS DRY LEADER

Declines To Head Group Named To Welcome Shouse; Asks Action To Reduce Number of Un- employed.

LOS ANGELES, April 8.—(AP)—What he believes are the roads to victory and defeat for the democratic party in the presidential election of 1932 were described today by William G. McAdoo in a letter in which he took issue with the policies advocated by National Chairman John J. Raskob.

Intelligent treatment of the greatest problem facing the country today, unemployment, not prohibition, the former democratic leader wrote, probably would bring back to the party the presidential chair.

Instead, he warned, if the party adopts the view of Chairman Raskob and presents the question of liquor as the major plank in its platform, "certain and disastrous defeat" will result.

"But if the fight is to continue," he wrote, "let each state, in the exercise of its rights, demand, if it wants to, that congress call a constitutional convention to repeal the eighteenth amendment. This will leave the question to the states, where it properly belongs, and will take it out of national conventions, which are powerless to do anything about it."

The letter was written to decline the post of vice chairman on a committee which will plan a reception here on April 13 for Joseph Shouse, chairman of the party's national executive committee.

"Repealing liquor," he wrote, "will not put food into a single hungry mouth nor provide employment for the great mass of the unemployed. Women in the United States—more than 6,000,000 in number as shown by a recent statement of Secretary of Commerce, Lamont."

"When we reflect there must be an average of at least two dependent persons on each of the 6,000,000 unemployed, we can get some idea of the magnitude of the problem which 15,000,000 people, largely without means of existence, presents to the country."

"If liquor the democratic answer to this vital problem? If it is, then the party is too impoverished in ideas to enter even a snail's race."

The former secretary of the treasury in the Wilson cabinet and one of the outstanding candidates for the democratic presidential nomination in 1924, expressed the belief a fight over liquor was only "a sham battle because the eighteenth amendment is here to stay anyway, and the quicker we recognize it, the better for democratic usefulness." In the end, he wrote, if the fight over prohibition continues the states should exercise their rights to deal with it as they saw fit.

Rather than quarrel over prohibition, he advised—the party should devote itself, if entrusted with power, to a solution not only of unemployment but agricultural problems, effective regulation of trusts and monopolies, and a system of unemployment insurance and old age pensions.

WORKERS BURIED IN CON- CRETE AS PARTIALLY COM- PLETED BUILDING FALLS.

BERKELEY, Cal., April 8.—(AP) One man was killed and 11 others were injured, seven seriously, when a section of new concrete roof of the mechanics building, under construction at the University of California campus, collapsed today.

Workers had toiled to complete laying of a 150-square yard area, three feet thick, above the new 3-story building. Skeleton bracing and pillars suddenly yielded, precipitating the workmen and tons of material to the ground.

Américo Cabral, of Oakland, died shortly after rescuers extricated him from the mass of wet concrete. Eleven others were taken to hospitals where their injuries were found to range from fractured skulls, internal injuries and cuts to broken bones.

Investigations were started by Fire Chief George Haggerty, of Berkeley, by State Fire Marshal Jay Stevens, and by the contractors.

Frank Brady, superintendent of new construction of the University of California, said a guard had been kept posted to watch the shoring supporting the roof, but that the braces buckled so fast there was no chance to warn the workmen.

Stark Desolation of Managua Area Is Described by Tracy Mathewson

Present conditions in Managua, as a result of the two-minute earthquake which destroyed the capital of Nicaragua a week ago last Tuesday, surpasses in sheer desolation even the vivid word pictures painted in press dispatches from the stricken city during the past week. Tracy Mathewson, well known here as a former Constitution news photographer and now connected with Pathe News, said Wednesday night.

Mathewson, assigned by his company to visit the quake-torn area, reached Managua from Jacksonville, Fla., early Friday morning of last week, in time to make the 1,500-mile flight on the regularly scheduled mail plane on the Pan-American route, part of the famous "Lindbergh cir-

ALLEGED BURGLAR IS BADLY WOUNDED

Earl Gazaway, Found in Store, Shot Through Head by Owner.

Earl Gazaway, 19, of a Berean avenue address, alleged burglar, lay at the point of death at Grady hospital shortly before midnight Wednesday, shot through the head by Bob Reeves, who is said to have surprised Gazaway inside his lunch stand at 317 South Boulevard.

According to police reports by Officers J. A. Hamilton and M. A. Manus, the lunch stand has been burglarized about 15 times within three years, many of them occurring within the past few weeks. Reeves, it was said, had been watching his place closely and Wednesday night found Gazaway inside and shot him when he refused to hold up his hands.

Reeves, returning to his home at 790 Delmar avenue after visiting a friend, noticed a man standing in front of his stand, he said. ## Rosendahl Named To Pilot New Navy Dirigible 'Akron'

Veteran Blimp Chief Is Chosen by Navy To Be
First Commander of Queen of Skies.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP)—Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, who knows more about airships in fair sailing and disaster than any other American, today was named the first skipper of the navy's new queen of the skies, the dirigible ZRS-4, better known as the Akron. Rosendahl was ordered to the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., April 15 to begin assembling a crew for the new airship from the personnel trained aboard the Los Angeles, the dirigible given to this country by Germany under the treaty of Versailles. Trial flights are to be conducted in July. Rosendahl is a survivor of the Shenandoah disaster and was for three years captain of the Los Angeles. The Akron, named for her birthplace, will be by far the largest flying craft in the world, with a cubic content two and a half times that of the Los Angeles, nearly double that of the Graf Zeppelin and 35 per cent larger than that of Great Britain's R-101, which crashed in France last year. Rosendahl is now in Washington, where he has been on duty with the naval bureau of aeronautics since July, 1930. Although still young, only 38, he is generally recognized as this country's foremost authority in lighter-than-air aviation, largely because of his intensive study during the last eight years and a practical experience probably without parallel in its range and thoroughness. Dr. Hugo Eckener and a few of the other Germans may surpass him in hours and miles flown, but during his long term as commander of the Los Angeles he carried through a program of training and experimentation that has not been equalled anywhere else in the world.

His new command is considered the supreme achievement of the airship builders, embodying the best wisdom and experience of this country and of Germany.

Although her length, 785 feet, is only 9 feet more than the Graf Zeppelin, her diameter is a third larger than the Graf's and her cubic measurements almost double. Eight engines with a total of 4,480 horsepower will give her a cruising range of 10,580 land miles without refueling, as against 4,000 for the Los Angeles and 6,125 for the Graf Zeppelin. She is designed to make 85.8 miles an hour.

The new pride of the navy's air forces is the first airship capable of carrying an airplane. Being a fighting ship—the Los Angeles and Graf Zeppelin are non-military craft—she can support a heavy armament of bombs, machine guns and light artillery.

The Akron's new skipper began his flying career in April, 1923, when he was assigned to the navy's dirigible base at Lakehurst, N. J. The navy launched its first rigid airship, the Shenandoah, in August, 1923, and two months later Rosendahl became a member of her crew.

He continued to fly with the Shenandoah until she was destroyed in a storm over Ava, Ohio, September 3, 1925. Fourteen of her crew of 43, including her commanding officer, Lieutenant Commander Zachary

TRADE HEAD ATTACKS FEDERAL FARM BOARD

Fails To Maintain Market
Levels, James C. Murray Declares.

CHICAGO, April 8.—(AP)—President James C. Murray, of the Chicago Board of Trade, declared today that the stabilization program of the farm board "has failed completely in the attempt to maintain the markets on any satisfactory level." In an address before the Chicago Association of Commerce he said the farm board's operations "have only resulted in accumulations which are a menace to the coming crops."

"Passage of the agricultural marketing act intended to be of benefit to the farmer has admittedly failed of its purpose. Aily managed by honest men interested in the working out of a definite scheme of farm relief, the operation of the act has again demonstrated the futility of interference with the normal action and reaction to supply and demand," he declared.

Through the act, he added, the government has advanced "large sums for the purpose of building up co-operative companies, under obligation to market their grain through the single channel approved by the farm board." But it has been clearly demonstrated in the experience of other countries that "the unit system of marketing through one national channel is not a success, and that a free and open market, one carrying a wide public interest is the only sound and safe means of disposing of staple crops."

Mr. Murray said the board of trade strongly recommended the following: "First, that the government should, at the earliest possible date, divest itself entirely of the business of merchandising grain, to the end that the marketing of the surplus already stored up shall be handled by the regular dealers in the domestic and export trade with the least possible disturbance to the marketing of the coming crops."

"Second, that in assisting the development of co-operative marketing as required under the terms of the act, government funds should not be used at lower rates of interest in the

SOCIAL SERVICE COUNCIL PLANNED

Increased effectiveness of social service work in Atlanta, with improvement of standards and co-operative planning and service, will be sought through organization of a council of social service agencies, for which a meeting has been called next Tuesday in the Chamber of Commerce building of representatives of all societies in the Community Chest.

A constitution, which provides that all forces for public service in Atlanta be enlisted for the council, was presented to a preliminary meeting Tuesday afternoon and approved.

"Although we have transacted some very important business and made some studies of social work among Chest agencies in social work conferences in the Chest office during the last four years," said Frank Miller, executive director of the Community Chest, Wednesday in discussing the plan, "our work has not been sufficiently inclusive nor have we been able to reach a sufficiently large public with the results of our efforts to create the confidence and support needed, not only in an emergency, but in ordinary times."

IT'S AN INVESTMENT IN

health freedom convenience

You used to call it your "light bill." Quite properly, too. It was a "light bill." It represented a few lights here and there about your home.

Even if all the wonderful, labor-saving, comfort-bringing appliances we now have had been available then—only the very wealthy could have afforded them. The cost of the electricity to operate them was too high.

Now, the cost of electric energy has been made so low that it provides no obstacle for the use of any of these modern servants by anyone. Now the poor man and his wife can—and many of them do—enjoy the benefits of having electricity do the irksome tasks about the home . . . banish drudgery.

It is so because the present rates for household electric service are designed specifically to make it so!

Since the revision of the rates of this Company in 1929, thousands of women all over Georgia have voted their approval of the new rates by having their homes equipped with electric refrigerators, ranges and other modern devices which they could not have afforded under the old rates.

During the past two years—since the new rates went into effect—Georgia dealers have sold tens of thousands of electric ranges and refrigerators, as well as a constantly increasing number of vacuum cleaners, washing machines, percolators, toasters, fans and other time-saving, comfort-bringing appliances.

In large part, Georgia women are responsible for these purchases of electrical home equipment. And they could not be induced to part with them.

For women have learned that letting electricity help in the home tasks is the path away from back-breaking drudgery to fuller, better, happier life.

CRIMINAL ANSWERS
STATE CHARGES

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP)—District Attorney Thomas C. Crain, white-haired and 71, who served with distinction on the bench of supreme court for years, took the witness stand before Governor's Commissioner Samuel Seabury today to justify his conduct of the prosecutor's office.

John Kirland Clark, prosecuting counsel, charged him with having failed to present to the grand jury evidence that fish dealers had paid $5,000 to Joseph Lanza, alleged racketeer, for protection.

Mr. Clark declared that John W. Walker, president of the Middletown-Carmen Fish Company, had gone before the grand jury expecting to be asked about the $5,000 payment, but Mr. Crain had failed to touch on it while questioning him.

"Did you ask Mr. Walker if he and his fellow dealers paid any money to Lanza?" demanded Mr. Clark.

"I did," replied the district attorney.

"Where?" asked Mr. Clark, referring to the minutes of the grand jury investigation. "Look at the record and tell me where it is."

Mr. Crain studied the minutes. Then he raised his head.

"Nowhere," he said, "I didn't ask the question."

He also said he did not issue any subpoenas for the books of fish dealers to find out if racketeer payments had been made.

William Fellows Morgan, Jr., president of the Brooklyn Bridge Freezing and Cold Storage Company, another market dealer, testified that racketeers in the market knew District Attorney Crain had sent him a letter, asking him to furnish information about racketeering, a day before the letter was delivered to him.

Mr. Crain, questioned by Samuel Untermyer, his counsel, declared the grand jury investigation into racketeering got nowhere because witnesses were afraid to testify.

Today's session was the first public hearing into charges against the district attorney. His removal is asked.

COTTON ASSOCIATION
NAMES D. W. ANDERSON

D. W. Anderson, of Gainesville, was elected president of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia at the final session of its three-day annual convention at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel Thursday. Mr. Anderson will succeed D. A. Jewell, Jr., of Chickamauga.

Norman E. Elsas, secretary of the Fulton Bag & Cotton Mills, Atlanta, was chosen vice president and treasurer; T. M. Forbes, Atlanta, was re-elected secretary; Hattin Lovejoy, of LaGrange, counsel, and C. W. Chears, of Atlanta, traffic manager.

The following board of directors was elected:

S. A. Fortson, Augusta; L. L. Jones, Canton; John H. Cheatham, Griffin; Paul K. McKenney, Columbus; W. N. Banks, Grantville; Fuller E. Callaway, LaGrange; W. D. Anderson, Jr., Macon; A. G. Dudley, Athens; A. T. Matthews, Thomasville; G. I. Parmenter, Cartersville; W. K. Moore, Dalton; Julian T. Hightower, Thomaston, and John A. Miller, Atlanta.

In his annual address the retiring president, Mr. Jewell, told the association that mill owners must demand and hold for more profitable prices if they expect to progress. Mr. Jewell asserted that mill executives alone are to blame for the failures to show profits in 1930. Average weekly shipments of wide print cloths and print cloth yarn fabrics in 1930, he pointed out, were off only 11 per cent from the high figures of 1929, while narrow sheeting shipments were off 22 per cent.

Mr. Jewell emphasized the contention that mill owners should "stop so much talking about prices that meanly about quality."

"We certainly cannot expect anyone to pay us more for goods than we ask," he said.

M. D. Crawford, associate editor of the Daily News Record, of New York, traced the history of the cotton industry at the final morning session, calling it "the record of a glorious art." Mr. Crawford summarized current trends, ending with a plea for greater co-ordination of facilities and co-operation of executives of the industry.

A luncheon was tendered the members Wednesday, following which election of officers was held. Speakers on the final day's program included Eugene B. Black, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Atlanta; W. J. Vereen, vice president of the Moultrie Cotton Mills; Mr. Elsas, C. W. Chears, and T. M. Forbes.

U. S. ESTATE TAX IS HELD INVALID

Act Is Unconstitutional, Federal Judge Asserts in Pittsburgh Ruling.

PITTSBURGH, April 8.—(AP)—Judge R. M. Gibson, in United States district court here today, upheld an attack on the constitutionality of a part of the federal estate tax act.

The decision was rendered in a suit against the government for the return of $228,067.71 filed by executors of the John W. Donnan estate of Washington, Pa.

The legal question passed upon by Judge Gibson involved the right of a citizen to dispose of part of his estate within two years of his death without the government taking the view that he contemplated death, and made the disposition to avoid collection of tax from his estate.

Donnan died December 23, 1928, at the age of 81. In March, 1927, he established a trust fund of $1,700,000 to be handled by his trustees, the income to go to his four children and the principal to be distributed in 20 years to the last survivors.

The government, in assessing estate tax, held that under the estate tax act it was a conclusive presumption of death to have established the trust fund within two years of Donnan's death. The plaintiff's claimed there was no thought of probable death in the mind of Donnan when he arranged the trust fund and that it was a gift.

The question of law decided by Judge Gibson today was said by court attaches to be involved in the estate

AVIATOR AND BRIDE KILLED IN CRASH

JEFFERSON, Ohio, April 8.—(AP)—An aviator and his bride of a week, Rolfe Patterson, 22, and Mrs. Ruth Patterson, 18, of Madison, were killed tonight when their airplane crashed at the farm of G. C. Patterson, six miles south of here.

RETURN OF 'JITNEYS' FAVORED BY TRADES

Indorsing a resolution adopted by the Atlanta Typographical Union, the Atlanta Federation of Trades, at its semi-monthly meeting Wednesday night, went on record as advocating the repeal of the city ordinance prohibiting the operation of jitney busses on the streets of Atlanta. The jitneys were put under the ban some years ago.

Repeal of the ordinance and the reinstatement of the jitneys was urged as a means of relieving the unemployment situation in Atlanta.

The federation also concurred in the Typographical Union's action urging elimination of the "one-man street cars," and the enactment of city ordinances prescribing the employment of two men on every street car operated in Atlanta.

Pointing out that the year 1931 marks the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the labor movement in America, the federation voted to start immediately with plans for the celebration of Labor Day by appointing a general committee from all trade union organizations in the Atlanta territory. This committee will formulate ways and means of placing the message of organized labor before the Atlanta public by every possible method, it was announced.

Pert Wire-Haired Fox Terrier, International Champion, Is Adjudged "Best Dog in Show" as Atlanta Event Ends

Above are six aristocrats of the canine world, all prize-winners Wednesday in the second and final day of judging in the annual dog show of the Atlanta Kennel Club, held at the Palais Peachtree under auspices of the Junior League. Upper left is Epping Emphasis, 10-month-old wire-haired fox terrier, adjudged first in the limit class and posed with Mrs. W. B. Dozier, Skyland, N. C., whose husband is the owner. Upper center is Sam Nee Toi, Jr., of Fan Shu, pronounced best of winners and best of breed among the Chow Chows. Sam is owned by O. Prince Ayers, of Savannah, but in the picture is in company of Mrs. J. Wen Lundeen, of East Lake. Upper right is Florida Dolly, best in breed among toy black and tans and co-starring in the photo with Irma Bradley, daughter of her owner, James Bradley, of Daytona Beach. Lower left is Dan, best of breed in the Great Dane class, owned by Mrs. Carl Ramspeck. In center below is Wood King of Dixie, winner of a first prize, a second prize and two special prizes. Jack Lee, his owner, appears with him. At lower right is Tamroff of Carolina, owned by L. M. Fowlkes, of Rockingham, N. C., and adjudged the most perfect Russian Wolfhound in the show. Staff photos by Bill Mason.

League's ward in the Henrietta Eggleston Hospital for Children. Judges were Lieutenant Colonel M. Robert Guggenheim, of Washington and New York, and W. O. Penny, of Johns Island, S. C. Officials of the kennel club are: Paul Hamer, president; Miss Catherine Erwin, first vice president; Mrs. Benno Stein, second vice president; and A. G. Laughridge, secretary and treasurer. Directors are F. E. Coffee, R. C. Hickman, J. J. Dunca, Paul Hamer, Benno Stein and L. F. Schelver. The Junior League co-operative committee was composed of Miss Catherine Erwin, chairman; Mrs. Nelson Ream, Mrs. Green Warren, Mrs. Clement Evans and Mrs. John Donaldson.

There were more than a thousand people about the ring for the evening's judging and they all gave the little champion a great hand when Mrs. Clark Howell, Jr., retiring president of the Junior League, which co-operated in the show, walked forward and presented the handler the cup for the best in show. The victory was a popular one.

Champion Westbourne Teetotaler, the cutest and the prettiest thing on four feet, was out in the ring with five other great dogs.

There was Glennvign King, a gallant pointer, owned by Mrs. L. D. Bryan, of Durham, N. C., and handled by L. D. Shriver, of Atlanta, as one competitor. The King was magnificent.

There was an Atlanta beagle in there, too, B. Shicks Double Eagle, owned and handled by Frank Banks. These beagles are always great showmen.

Shepherd Competitor. Gots von Bieburg, a beautiful shepherd, owned by J. M. Jones, of Charlotte, N. C., had won in his group and was a stout competitor. He was handled by Benno Stein, of the Stein Training School.

Florida Dolly, one of those animated Toy Black and Tans, was handled by his owner, James Bradley, of Daytona Beach, Fla.

The Boston Terrier, having won in the non-sporting group, were represented by Conde's Parader, owned by Winnifred Graves, of Detroit, and handled by S. H. Reddo, of Birmingham.

They were all winners. They were all alert and ready for the competition. But somehow the little compact, wire-haired terrier stood out, despite his diminutive size, like the champion he is.

He stepped. He paced. He eyed the gallery, which was laughing at him and wanting to hug him. He was all dignity. He was at the next moment a miniature Pierrot. He was a great actor, was Westbourne Teetotaler. He knew he had the cups all along.

The cup was many times larger than the little Teetotaler, but he flung a careless glance at it and trotted out of the ring.

International Champion. He is getting a little bored with cups, perhaps. He is an international champion, is the Teetotaler. He has won the best in show honors until he is the best-known wire-haired terrier in the show game.

And here's a secret. One of his sons is getting so good that they think he may some day beat the old man and so they are going to retire him after another season. He is a great sire, is Champion Westbourne, and his children will keep the name and the blood line going.

The show was a pronounced success. The Atlanta Kennel Club, in organizing the eleventh annual show, asked the Junior League to co-operate. All surplus funds will go to the

Court Battle Is Forecast Over Rockne's Insurance

Double Indemnity Provisions Likely To Cause Litigation, Attorney for Widow Says.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 8.—(AP)—Litigation over clauses in life insurance policies held by Knute Rockne appeared likely after his will was filed for probate today.

The entire estate, termed, "very modest" aside from the insurance policies which were estimated to total approximately $125,000, was left to the widow, Mrs. Bonnie G. Rockne.

Vitus E. Jones, attorney for the estate of the famous coach who lost his life in an airplane tragedy last week, indicated that litigation might ensue over the question of whether double indemnity should be paid on some of the policies. The policies provided for double payment for accidental death, other than "death resulting from the decedent's engaging in a passenger or otherwise in a submarine or aeronautical expedition."

Plans for a memorial to Rockne were progressing, but James E. Armstrong, secretary of the Notre Dame Alumni Association, said the committee was not yet in a position to decide what form it would take. A field house was one of a number of suggestions favorably considered.

The Rev. Fr. Michael Mulcaire, S. C., vice president of the University of Notre Dame and chairman of the athletic board of control, said no decision had been reached concerning a successor to Rockne, but that an announcement would be made next week.

STATIONERS OPEN MIAMI SESSIONS

MIAMI, Fla., April 8.—(AP)—Delegates from nine southern states were here today for the tenth annual convention of the National Stationers' Association.

Addresses of interest to the stationers were on the program for the first day today while election of officers and selection of a 1932 convention city were scheduled for tomorrow.

A banquet tonight and a golf tournament at Coral Gables tomorrow afternoon for visiting delegates are features of the entertainment program.

Arne S. Kagestam, Miami district governor, said more than 150 delegates were here for the two-day meeting.

States embraced in the district are Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

How To Avoid Spring Fever

Housed up all winter, without fresh air, exercise, and eating few or no fresh green vegetables, allows the system to become all clogged up—stomach, intestines, colon, liver, kidneys and even sweat glands—with poisonous refuse matter which must be cleaned out—your human "flues" unstoppered—or else you feel slow, sluggish, dazed, no appetite or energy and sometimes ache in head and joints.

The "human house" should be thoroughly cleaned, just as you do the home, to make it more livable, and this you can best do with Jacobs' Laxative Salt, by simply taking two teaspoons before breakfast for several mornings. After the first dose you feel a pleasant sensation of returning energy and vigor, a clearing up of the head, a natural liver and bowel action—it thoroughly cleans the system of its winter accumulation of toxic poisons—and may be had at any drug store.—(adv.)

Charred Body of Dog Reveals Fiendish Act

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 8.—(AP)—The charred body of a dog, its mouth wired shut so it could not bark and its feet bound so it was unable to escape, was said today by police to have been found hanging from a tree over the embers of a fire.

The animal had been put to death both by hanging and by burning, officers said. A wire had been used to suspend the dog from the tree, its legs just clearing the fire. The flames had burned the body to such an extent the dog could not be identified.

SNOWSTORM CRIPPLES LIGHT, POWER IN EAST

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP)—Sections of upper New York state, Pennsylvania and New England were covered with snow today as a result of a storm which crippled power and light service in several communities and hampered travel throughout the affected areas.

A wet, sticky blanket was laid from the foothills of the Adirondacks to Albany, varying in depth from three to six inches.

Salem, N. Y., was thrown into darkness when a 12-inch fall of snow disabled the lighting system. Many telephone lines were down.

Traffic in the vicinity of Olean, N. Y., was hampered by the storm during which 10 inches of snow fell.

Buses from New York and other points were four and five hours behind schedule. The storm extended as far as Port Allegany, Coudersport and Emporium, Pa.

At Towanda, Pa., 16 inches of snow fell in 24 hours. Light and telephone wires were down at Santon.

In New England the heaviest fall was reported from southern and western New Hampshire, where hundreds of automobiles were stalled and light and power lines were out of commission. A number of minor automobile accidents occurred in the vicinity of Rochester, N. H., caused by snow-blinded windshields. Six inches of snow was reported at Keene, N. H., and two inches at Manchester.

Snow also fell in Boston and other parts of Massachusetts and in Maine and Vermont. Telephone service was disrupted at Lowell, Mass.

New York city and other portions of the east experienced rain as their share of the storm, which came on a northeast wind.

BOWLES, WOMAN GIVEN $300 FINES

PORTLAND, Ore., April 8.—(AP)—Nelson C. Bowles, millionaire sportsman, and Miss Irma Loucks, his former secretary, today pleaded guilty to statutory charges and were fined $300 each.

The two were acquitted last month of a charge of having murdered Bowles' wife, Leone C. Bowles. At the murder trial the defendants admitted they had been intimate. They said Mrs. Bowles, who died in Miss Loucks' apartment with a broad knife plunged in her breast, killed herself in despair over Bowles' unfaithfulness.

Advantages and Disadvantages of State's Much-Maligned Constitution Pointed Out to High School Seniors in Informative Address by Watkins

Members of the senior class of almost every high school in the Greater Atlanta area gathered Wednesday afternoon in Fulton High school auditorium to hear Judge Edgar Watkins point out the good points and the defects of the present constitution of the state of Georgia. His address was made in connection with an essay contest for high school seniors sponsored by the Civitan club. Members of the Atlanta Civitan organization may be seen standing at the rear. Staff photo by Bill Mason.

Expounding, article by article, the present constitution of the state of Georgia, Judge Edgar Watkins addressed senior class members of virtually every high school in Greater Atlanta Wednesday afternoon in the Fulton High school auditorium. Judge Watkins' address was made in connection with an essay contest in which high school seniors of the city will write on the subject of a constitutional convention, competing for prizes offered by the Civitan Club. The speaker was introduced by B. C. Broyles, president of the Atlanta Civitan Club. Beginning with the bill of rights, Judge Watkins took up each article separately, pointing out its defects or its advantages in an interesting and highly informative manner. In Article III he stressed the faults of constitutional provisions whereby Fulton county is allowed only one representative to about 100,000 persons, whereas in smaller counties the ratio is one representative to less than 3,000 persons.

Miss Dell, Civil Service Expert, Delivers Second Lecture Tonight

With a distinguished public service career of 33 years behind her, extending from a clerkship in the war department at the close of the Spanish-American War to her appointment in 1925 as a member of the civil service commission, Miss Jessie Dell, native Georgian, is attracting a great deal of interest by her series of lectures in Atlanta this week.

The second of these, Miss Dell having spoken Tuesday afternoon to the Atlanta Federal Business Association on "More Business in Government," comes at 7:30 o'clock tonight at a meeting of local No. 122 of the National Federation of Federal Employees at the Ansley hotel. This will be more of an informal discussion than a set speech. Friday morning at 9:35 she will speak before the student body of Agnes Scott College.

Born at Sylvania, Ga., Miss Dell received her early education at Sylvania Institute, her father, the late John C. Dell, originally planning a legal career for her. Her appointment to the war department at the hands of the secretary of war in President McKinley's administration launched her upon 25 years of service and constant promotion with the department, climaxed by her selection in September, 1925, as one of the three many thousands of civil service employees throughout the United States and its possessions.

During the stressful days of the World War, when the government was called upon to handle billions of dollars, Miss Dell served in the highly responsible capacity of chief of the contract division of the war department directly under General Herbert M. Lord, chief of the finance bureau maintained by the department. After the war, she was sent to France, where she organized and directed the information bureau of the graves registration service, which association was charged with the return of thousands of the American war dead to their native soil and with the burial of many others in the famous American cemeteries in France.

"The competitive examination system in the civil service of the United States," stated Miss Dell in her address Tuesday, "is no longer an experiment. It has met the relatively moderate demands of peace, and has stood the acid test of war."

Among Georgians who hold high federal positions, Miss Dell mentioned Miss Annabel Matthews, a member of the board of tax appeal; Starke M. Grogan, a chief statistician in the census bureau; James T. Scott, trade commissioner of Hamburg, Germany; George B. McGinty, secretary of the interstate commerce commission; Dr. Matthew Baines, medical officer in charge of the veterans' hospital in the Bronx, New York; Dr. Harry Rubin, holding a similar position in the hospital at American Lake, Wash.; and William J. Tison, judge of the United States customs court in New York. She praised the conduct of the Atlanta postal service under Postmaster E. K. Large.

During her stay in Atlanta, Miss Dell is the guest of Mrs. John F. MacDougall, at her home on Pace's Ferry road. On Saturday morning, she plans a visit to the famous Martha Berry school at Rome, and will return to this city later in the day to leave for Washington.

clered, should be increased. Article VI does not provide for the much-needed co-ordination of the state's judicial system. Judge Watkins stated, nor does Article VII properly classify that property which is liable to taxation or permit the state to repay an indebtedness of $25,000,000 owed to numerous counties for bonds created on county property.

MOVES FOR PEACE IN PORTUGAL FAIL

LISBON, Portugal, April 8.—(AP)—Despite efforts to restore peace at Madeira, Madeira, by negotiations, reports reaching here tonight said the British cruiser London, on such demands that the Lisbon dictatorship retire before they treat with the government.

Because of this defiant attitude, the government was determined to press measures previously agreed upon to put down the revolt. This does not preclude the possibility of taking the city by armed force under the protection of warships in the harbor.

The first contingent of an expeditionary force was dispatched to the island for here yesterday.

For the time being, it was announced, no withdrawal of the American colony from Madeira is contemplated. This was decided after the American minister here conferred with the foreign office.

Meanwhile, it was announced that the British cruiser London, on such demands that the Lisbon dictatorship retire before they treat with the government.

Decided optimism had been shown earlier today after the government of Portugal, Diogo de Menezes, announced that the rebels had solicited foreign consuls for mediation and protection. Government circles, however, did not confirm this report.

A dispatch from Funchal, however, said the revolution had seized the 4,469-ton steamer Carvalho Araujo, which stopped to discharge passengers and take on cargo on its way to Lisbon from the Azores. Apparently the vessel was unaware of the government's order that all ships avoid Funchal as a port of call for the time being.

Government circles announced that other garrisons were loyal and that the civil governor at Ponta Delgada in the Azores islands reported that the garrison there had refused an invitation to join the movement with Madeira.

European Royal Couple Marries Amid Court Splendor of Palermo

PALERMO, Sicily, April 8.—(AP)—Prince Henri, Count of Paris, and Princess Isabelle of Orleans and Braganza, descendants of two vanished dynasties, were married today amid royal splendor in the medieval cathedral of Palermo.

The 23-year-old prince and his 18-year-old bride will start on their honeymoon trip tomorrow, remaining for a short time at Villa Igea and then making a tour of the courts of Europe. They will live at the Chateau d'Agmont in the Belgian Ardennes, near Brussels.

Former Queen Amelie, of Portugal, scores of princes and princesses and a thousand lesser nobles attended the wedding ceremony, performed by Cardinal Lavitrano by last-minute concession of Pope Pius XI.

The Royalist Movement of Action Française, which is under the ban of the Catholic church, was represented by hundreds of supporters of the groom's father, the Duke de Guise, pretender to the fallen throne of King Louis Philippe.

Famed Poetess Honored Guest Of Writers Club

Members of the Atlanta Writers' Club Wednesday night had as their honor guest at a dinner in the Athletic Club, Mrs. Francis Biddle, of Philadelphia, Pa., who—under her maiden name of Katherine Garrison Chapin—is internationally known as a poetess.

Mrs. Biddle came to Atlanta from her winter home at Uxapa Island, Fla., expressly to attend the Writers' Club function, and the readings she gave from her selected poems proved to be one of the most delightful features of the program.

A representative group of Atlanta poets formed an appreciative and highly responsive audience for Mrs. Biddle's readings, as well as for the other numbers on the program, which included a series of original dances by Miss Hazel Butler, a brief talk by Dr. William F. McFadden, editor of the works of the late Ernest Hornbeck, Daniel Whitehead Hickey, Minnie Hight Moody, Marguerite Stephens, Mrs. C. Gainer Turner, Jessie Young Norton, James E. Warren, Jr., and Dr. Anderson Scruggs, chairman of the Poetry Forum of the Writers' Club, who acted as master of ceremonies.

From her current volume, "Outside of the World," Mrs. Biddle read a number of delicate and highly pictorial lyrics, including the witty "Honey-mooners on the Train."

Those attending the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Haynie, Miss Adelaide Cunningham, John Graham, Miss Marguerite Steadman, Mrs. C. Gainer Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norton, James Warren, Miss Cora Stewart, Mrs. John Echols, Daniel Whitehead Hickey, Miss Margery de Leon, Mrs. Howard Matthews, Parker Hodge, Miss Lillian Pierce, Dr. and Mrs. Anderson Scruggs, Mrs. Fritz Jones, Miss Temperance Vaughan, Mrs. Wesley Hirschberg, Miss Kathleen Moran, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Melton, Mrs. Pat Hogan, Miss Blossom Tucker, F. Zimmer and Miss Minnie T. Wilson.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Nearly one-half the residents of Atlanta more than 10 years of age are engaged in gainful occupation, according to a statement given out today by the census bureau. This shows that on April 1, 1930, out of the total population of 270,366, there were 130,154 gainful workers, or 48.1 per cent.

Of the gainful workers 82,952 were males, representing 63.6 per cent of the male population and 47,202 were females, representing 37.9 per cent of the female population.

The whole number of gainful workers in the city of Atlanta included the following industry groups: 36,645 in manufacturing and mechanical industries, including 8,040 in the building industry; 3,505 in iron and steel industries; 3,028 in food and allied industries; 2,308 in paper, printing and allied industries; 2,360 in cotton mills; 2,281 in automobile factories and repair shops; 2,146 in chemical and allied industries; 1,940 in clothing industries and 1,700 in lumber and furniture industries; 1,416 in transportation, including 6,671 on steam and street railroads; 29,360 in trade, including banking and insurance; 22,734 in domestic and personal services; 9,421 in professional service, including 1,319 in recreation and amusement; and 3,463 in public service (not elsewhere classified).

IMPEACHMENT SOUGHT OF FLORIDA OFFICIAL

State Comptroller Ernest Amos Charged With Willful Neglect of Duty.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 8.—(UP)—Articles of impeachment charging willful neglect and failure to perform duties against State Comptroller Ernest Amos were filed in the house of representatives today.

The petition, filed by J. T. Watson, Hillsborough county, specified Amos allegedly allowed the Citizens Bank & Trust Company of Tampa to declare a dividend when it was insolvent on June 30, 1929.

Amos also is charged with failure to take possession of the bank when it became insolvent, allowed deposits to be removed, permitted the bank to use its own capital stock to buy stock of other corporations in violation of the law and failed to remove from the board of directors members approving such practices.

Speaker E. Clay Lewis, Gulf county, is expected to appoint a committee early next week to probe the charges. If the house decides the charges are valid the case will be referred to the senate for trial.

Amos declined to comment concerning the petition except to say that he expected such action.

ENGINEERS TO STUDY GOVERNMENT WASTE

Rising Cost of Operation May Lead to Serious Trouble, Wallace Says.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP)—A plan for greater efficiency in government lest its rising cost "lead to more or less serious trouble" was voiced today by Lawrence W. Wallace, executive secretary of the American Engineering Council.

He announced the council planned to investigate the general problem of public services and expenditures by national, state and municipal governments.

"Notwithstanding the increasing cost of government," he said, "the people are not being sufficiently and rapidly supplied with the conveniences and services they desire."

"It is possible that the ever-increasing expenditures of government are due to the realization by politicians that there is a real demand by the people for greater facilities and services."

Increased governmental efficiency could be obtained, he added, through reorganization of governmental agencies, "a revision of policies and practices and the injection into governmental functions of more intelligence, leadership and economy."

Flagler Seeking Education For Home Owners, Builders

In the belief that education of the public in proper methods of building and construction of residences will stimulate interest in home ownership, T. T. Flagler, president of the Flagler Company, of Atlanta, has returned from Washington determined, he said Wednesday, to acquaint prospective home-owners with the most desirable uses of building materials.

In Washington Mr. Flagler attended meetings of the National Committee on Wood Utilization of the department of commerce, of which committee he is a member, having been appointed by the secretary of commerce. On that group Mr. Flagler represents the Associated General Contractors of America, Inc., of which he is a past president.

"The outstanding need to bring residential construction back to normalcy," says Mr. Flagler, "is to impart to the home owner the necessary knowledge in regard to home design and construction."

"Lacking this knowledge the home owner is naturally reluctant to part with his money, since he realizes that the buying of a home is the most important investment which the average man makes in his entire lifetime."

The national committee on wood utilization is a co-operative body of prominent representatives of industry and the government, working for efficient wood using practices. Lumbermen, engineers, architects, contractors, real estate operators and the full range of wood users and producers are represented on this committee.

Since 60 per cent or more of the products of the forest are used in building and construction, it is logical that the stimulation of good construction practices and efficient design and

WITNESS BLAMES LEA FOR LOSING POSITION

Former Commissioner Says Banker Favored Particular Company.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 8.—(AP) The battering ram of politics pounded at the highway department doors in vain during his tenure as commissioner, Neil Bass told the state affairs investigating committee today, and he believed his resistance was to blame for his removal.

Back in 1926, he testified, the late Governor Austin Peay asked him to stop by his home, saying that Colonel Luke Lea, newspaper publisher and politician, had "some kind of a proposition" he wanted to discuss with them.

Bass said that Colonel Lea made the suggestion that if the state would buy cement from one particular dealer, that dealer would contribute to the campaign fund.

The witness said that such an arrangement would be "impossible," whereupon "Colonel Lea immediately got up, walked out of the room and closed the door."

Governor Peay commented that Colonel Lea appeared "mad," the witness said, and Peay also told Bass that such a plan as had been suggested was "absolutely unthinkable."

Bass had been unable to recall the name of the company Colonel Lea had mentioned. Some of the committee members sought to prompt him by mentioning the Hermitage Portland Cement Company, but he could not remember what company it was.

Henry H. Horton talked to the witness' father-in-law, a boyhood friend of the executive, and told him in effect that Bass had "not used the highway department to the utmost as a political unit." His father-in-law, however, had not mentioned the matter to him until after he had been removed as commissioner by the governor in February, 1928, Bass told the committee.

The former commissioner declined to express an opinion as to whether a highway head "could almost control an election by promising roads in each section of the state if he wanted to."

He did testify, however, in reply to a question about delegations seeking roads and promising votes in return, that he never had permitted "that kind of argument."

Bass reiterated previous testimony that Colonel Lea shortly before Governor Peay's death in the fall of 1927 had requested him to specify sandstone rock asphalt in road work materials, but said he refused to do so.

The Kentucky Rock Asphalt Company, in which Rogers Caldwell was interested, was one of the several producers of this material, it was developed.

The witness was asked if, in his opinion, the reasons he was dismissed were because he "didn't use the highway department for political purposes" and refused to specify rock asphalt without competition, and the answer was "Yes, sir."

AUTOGIRO RECORD SET BY AVIATRIX

Miss Earhart Reaches Altitude of 19,000 Feet for New Mark.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—(UP)—Miss Amelia Earhart made two altitude tests with an autogiro plane at the Piteau airfield, Willow Grove, this afternoon, landing on the second flight at 19,000 feet.

She reached an unofficial altitude of 19,000 feet in the second test, having soared to 18,500 feet in the first.

In surpassing her first altitude in the late afternoon test, Miss Earhart established two records in one day. She is the only woman who ever has piloted one of the "windmill" types of craft. Her record may be approved as a real world one for men as well as women to shoot at.

"I feel fine," Miss Earhart exclaimed as she stepped from the plane into her husband's arms at the end of the second flight.

"I am sure that I went higher than 19,000 feet, although that is all that my instruments registered. The plane worked splendidly, and the entire day was very successful."

The plane was up 1 hour and 50 minutes on the first flight, and 1 hour and 40 minutes on the second.

Miss Earhart carried a sealed barograph in each flight. The barographs will be sent to Washington for an official reading.

Miss Earhart—the only woman to make a successful airplane crossing of the Atlantic—may find that she has ascended higher in a "windmill" plane than anyone, man or woman. There is no official record for autogiro altitude, and it is said unofficially that the previous "ceiling" for men was around 15,000 feet.

Miss Earhart started her first flight at noon, clad in an electrically heated flying suit.

Her huge propeller blades whirling on top, the autogiro went up rapidly. At 16,000 feet the motor stopped. It started again, and rose to 18,500 feet before the gasoline supply began to give out. She descended easily.

Though she was pleased with her flight, Miss Earhart decided at once to go up again and try to do better.

"When I reached 18,500 feet the

Macon Man Leads Star to Altar

He used to be her leading man, but now— Well, he married her, so you can draw your own conclusions as to who is going to do all the leading from now on. The happy couple are shown as they appeared immediately after the wedding at the home of the bride in New York. The newlyweds will continue to appear together.

plane was climbing steadily," she said. "I was faced with strong winds which delayed me for a time, however, when the gasoline became low, I could have made 22,000 feet, I think."

"I had no trouble in seeing after I left the ground and did not need cotton in my ears to reduce air pressure. It was cold, but I think not freezing. It was novel to fall from 18,000 feet, with almost no gasoline left, and realize that I was depending not upon the motor but upon the rotor blades to bring me down safely."

"I feel that the autogiro has great possibilities."

The autogiro has been aptly nicknamed "windmill" because of the appearance of its overhead propeller. Directly over the cockpit its four large blades flare out. They are rigid on the shaft, and act as stabilizers. After the motor has been cut off in the air, the blades continue in motion and lower the plane to earth. An autogiro is looked forward to by many experts as the "fool proof" plane. It can take off in a 100-foot circle and land in a 50-foot circle.

Consolidation of Fulton and DeKalb counties and all municipalities in both of them will be urged at the next meeting of the Atlanta borough council, it was announced Wednesday by Councilman George B. Lyle, of the eleventh ward, a large portion of which lies in DeKalb.

Lyle plans to offer a measure asking appointment of a special committee representing each of the boroughs and one member from Fulton and another from DeKalb to study the feasibility of the plan and to evolve a means of consummating the proposal.

He declared such a procedure would mean economical government, reduce overhead and eliminate overlapping of duties.

NEW POLITICAL CRISIS IS AVOIDED IN CUBA

Machado Makes Concessions to Foes To Forestall Trouble.

HAVANA, April 8.—(AP)—President Machado, in an effort to avert what appears to be an almost unavoidable crisis in the Cuban political situation, has decided to make three important concessions to the opposition which is trying to oust him.

They are:

First, agreement to permit return to Cuba more than 60 political prisoners recently transferred to the Isle of Pines prison from Principe fortress here.

Second, granting of liberty to Colonel Aurelio Hevia, nationalist chief, who has been held somewhat as a hostage by the government for many weeks.

Third, agreement to liberate Major Manuel Espinosa, former presidential aide-de-camp who was court-martialed on charges of an attempt against the president's life, and reacused yesterday by a palace guard as having been an anti-administration plotter.

The first concession is expected to placate the students, and the second is considered a compromise move in the direction of the nationalist union, principal organizer of the body seeking General Machado's removal. The third is expected to block criticism of the public, which has been given to understand that the court-martial trying Espinosa found him innocent.

Two general amnesty proclamations published in the official gazette today pardon persons charged with offenses through the medium of the press against election judges or the electoral law.

PUBLICATION BAN OPPOSED BY KEY

Following an opinion by Reuben R. Arnold, leading Atlanta attorney, that the effort of Alderman G. Everett Milligan to bar certain publications from sale in Atlanta, is illegal, Mayor James L. Key Wednesday expressed doubt as to the advisability of such a move, and said that in his opinion there are sufficient laws to suppress circulation of publications "extolling crime."

The Milligan proposal has the backing of the police committee of council and was sent to the ordinance committee for consideration at its next meeting slated for 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, April 16.

In commenting on the proposed ordinance, Mr. Arnold branded it as "utterly illegal" and declared it would establish "a most dangerous precedent."

"It seems to me that there are sufficient laws regulating publications which tend to incite riot, disturb the peace or distribute obscene pictures," the mayor said. "We always run the risk of being outside constitutional provisions guaranteeing free press and free speech when we attempt to regulate publications. There are some, however, which should be suppressed, but rigid enforcement of existing laws would, I believe, relieve the situation."

SECRET PLACES

BY JOAN SUTHERLAND

INSTALLMENT XVI.

"I don't want to talk," she called back. "I am tired and I want to go to sleep. There is nothing to talk about. Please go away. I am not in the least angry. I am merely extremely tired and I want to rest."

"But, Toni!" through the door Greta's voice was low and urgent. "You can't for one single instant imagine that I want to make trouble with Feodor. Why, my dear child, it is absurd."

"Oh! I don't care what you wanted, did do, or didn't do," Toni replied. "For heaven's sake go away! Everyone seems determined to annoy me!"

And with that Greta went. Feodor Staire bade Greta good-night and walked downstairs and out to the Avenue. Everything there was very still with the heavy summer heat that hung over Paris a veil. It was only about 11, but since Toni had refused to see him it was too early to wait at the apartment, and he turned eastwards, walking furiously. That Toni should have so instantly and readily believed evil of him was a shock he felt almost unable to endure; he had many years ago been fought and tamed, to outward control at least, not only by reason of the exigencies of his profession, but because he was wise enough to realize that his indulgence might wreck his life. But beneath that control his passions were violent and deep-seated. He had given to Toni, to this young girl—who did not like young girls—not only the fierce desires of his maturity, but love and tenderness such as he had not believed existed within him. In her he had found a refuge from loneliness, a companionship at once fresh and entrancing, a response that had amazed him; what he had not realized, what even now he did not fully understand, was her own depth of feeling for him. He knew women; but the modern jeune fille was outside his ken; he did not even guess the meaning of the truth which was that Toni was so overwrought by her love and her fears, that she was in no mood to act reasonably.

Near the bottom of the Avenue Georges V he paused, then signaled to a prowling taxi and was driven over to the Boulevard Montparnasse, where he went to a cafe and sat down at the one vacant seat he saw on the pavement. He seldom visited the Quartier; still more rarely the cafes; but to-night the thought of his own apartment, or the company of any of his friends, was insupportable. He wanted something to take him out of himself, something to watch that could not remind him of the Paris he knew, and, therefore, of Toni, and so he sat outside the cafe and drank coffee from a tall, thick glass, and let his glance roam idly about the crowds. It was the usual melee, pseudo-artists, models, starting tourists, American and English—enthralled by what they believed to be the real student life of the famous Quartier Latin, all were there; the usual bizarre clothes worn to startle or attract; the usual postures and blagues, all the odds and ends and decadents. Feodor's face wore an expression of cynical amusement, though when someone touched his shoulder from behind he started violently, and his upper lip drew back from his teeth in what was almost a snarl. A girl stood close beside him, a girl in a smart, black, tight-fitting little coat, a black skirt and a wide-brimmed black hat. She looked on her shock of red, curly hair. Her face was very white, her lips scarlet, her eyes—unexpectedly dark—were amazing in her exotic face. "You're Feodor Staire, aren't you?" she said in English, in a voice that was unexpectedly educated. "You were at Ravel's studio when he was painting me—a 'Vest of Commodus'—you remember?"

Feodor rose to his feet with a brief, ironical bow. "I remember..."

She nodded, dragging off her hat and smoothing the curly red hair. "I knew you would—not. I am Gigi. But it's so, all the same. Are you alone?"

Feodor, since there was no other chair, remained standing. "Yes, mademoiselle." "Which means you wish to be. I do not interfere—but where is Ravel?" "Hasn't he paid you?" Feodor said, and Gigi's eyes flared dangerously. "He always pays," she retorted. "I thought he was a friend of yours. Pah! You mean—and you say we are not loyal!"

She looked him up and down in swift insolence, snatched up her hat, and turning on her heel strode down the narrow gangway, between the crowded marble-topped tables, called to and greeted by many of the cafe's habitués, stared at by the tourists. Feodor stood watching her for a moment, then he asked for his bill and went after her along the brightly lit stretch of pavement. Near the top of the Boul. Mich' where it was darker she stopped, and he saw her lean against the wall as if exhausted; quickening his pace he overtook her. "Gigi, come and have supper with me!" he said in a tone not easily to be resisted. "I am alone and hungry and in a vile temper..." and I knew as well as you that you always pay. You will forgive me?"

She jerked herself upright and the color stormed into her face; she was on the point of refusing, but hunger won the day, and five minutes later they were in a comparatively quiet corner of a restaurant less famed for sight-seeing than the place where Staire had been, and a big plateful of excellent soup was vanishing down Gigi's white throat. Feodor, watching her, remembered she had said to Ravel only for the Vestal—an irony beloved of the painter—but for several of his less talked-of pictures. He wondered why she was so evasive and reserved, especially when chicken and wine had made her eyes glow, and taken the lines from her forehead and the blue shadows from beneath the thick powder on her cheeks. He asked her what she had been doing. "I have been ill," she said lightly. "Oh, a mere nothing—la grippe—but it stayed too long. I passed for Le Bourget as a nurse and cryer chilled. That was in March. C'était fou—but it was hospital, and I found it a little difficult to work again immediately. The keeping of a pose, you understand, is of the most difficult when the legs go so!" She sketched a tremble and collapse with airy gesture. "Tonight I thought some of the gang out there might tell me if Ravel had yet returned."

"And you saw me—Bonne chance. Gigi! Ravel returns at the end of September. He is in the country." He saw her flinch, then she shrugged. "Is that so then? I shall take other work and not wait. Zut! What does it matter?"

Feodor could not help noticing that the girl had eaten as though half-famished. When at length she suggested that they move, he had made up his mind she needed help. "Yes," she said, in answer to his guarded inquiry. "My money has all gone—I have given up my room—Madame required it."

He was silent for a moment. "You have been very kind to have supper with me. I was bored beyond endurance—miserable—Gigi; you will go back to Madame and say you require that room, or to another madame and another room. At once, you understand? Ravel spoke to me of the picture he will use you for in the early autumn, and you must be well for him, not—so?" He mimicked her gesture of the shaky knees. "He said to me that without you he would be in despair, since you, and you only, have the face and the figure, and the sense together. You will pay a week in advance, and tomorrow you will come to my apartment, and tell me your address. And each week you will pay in advance till Ravel returns. I will be your banker, Gigi!"

She took the notes at last, gave her word, and suddenly in the darkness, pulled down his head, kissed his mouth with a wild sweet caress and fled away down the silent street. Feodor watched the direction in which she had gone for a moment, then he shrugged, lifted his hand and passed it across his lips, not to brush away the kiss, but as if he savored its piteous youth. ## Miss Smith Weds Mr. Leathers At Impressive Home Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Berta Lee Smith and Sutton Turner Leathers was solemnized last evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Smith, on Peachtree road. The Rev. W. W. Memminger, rector of All Saints' church, performed the ceremony.

The lovely home was elaborately decorated with palms, Easter lilies and southern smilax. An improvised altar was arranged in front of the fireplace in the living room, with palms banked high and a graceful basket of Easter lilies as the central feature of the decoration. Interspersed in the background were smaller baskets of lilies and candelabra holding burning tapers.

Miss Lillian Smith, sister of the bride, who acted as maid of honor, was gowned in green crepe romaine made princess style with a cowl neckline and very low décolletage. She carried a bouquet of sweet peas, roses and snapdragons in pastel shades.

The matron of honor, Mrs. D. E. Pinkard, another sister of the bride, wore peach crepe romaine made on similar lines to that worn by the maid of honor. Her flowers were pastels—shades of pink, blue and white.

Little Miss Mary Elizabeth Pinkard, niece of the bride, who was flower girl, wore a dainty frock of pink net. The bride's ring bearer wore a white satin suit.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, L. A. Smith, presented a charming picture in her wedding gown of ivory satin made princess style, with long, tight sleeves which were pointed at the wrists. The gown was fashioned with a cowl neck and a train extending from the waistline. The bride's bouquet was of roses sprayed with lilies of the valley.

Mr. Leathers had as his best man Robert Kellam.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Smith entertained at a wedding reception. Receiving with the hosts were the members of the bridal party and the mother of the groom, Mrs. M. H. Leathers. Assisting in the entertaining were Mrs. C. L. Smith, aunt of the bride; Mrs. Oscar Thompson and Mrs. D. H. Barnes. The bride's table was decorated in pastel shades centered with a silver epergne holding roses and snapdragons.

Handsome Gowns.

Mrs. Smith, mother of the bride, was gowned in a becoming model of eggshell flat crepe, and completing her costume was a corsage of gardenias.

Mrs. M. H. Leathers, mother of the bridegroom, wore black chiffon combined with lace, and her corsage was also of gardenias.

Mrs. C. L. Smith was gowned in black lace, worn with a shoulder bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride's traveling costume was a modish suit of gray wool crepe with wide cuffs of silver fox and worn with a felt hat and accessories of gray. Immediately after the reception Mr. and Mrs. Leathers left for a motor trip through North Carolina.

Health Risk in Handkerchiefs

Disposable KLEENEX TISSUES are safe, cost less, too

USE a handkerchief you can destroy! That is the latest word in modern hygiene. Most infection enters the body through the nose and mouth. No soiled handkerchief should ever touch your face. It's filled with germs—should be destroyed.

The American people understand hygiene. Kleenex, therefore, has taken hold like wildfire. You use it in place of handkerchiefs. Then destroy.

Useful in many ways

You'll soon find you simply can't do without Kleenex. Use it for removing cold cream... applying cosmetics... dusting... manicuring... wiping razor blades... in the nursery.

Kleenex comes in 25-cent, 50-cent and $1.00 packages. At drug, dry goods and department stores.

Bacteriological Tests Show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 bacteria per handkerchief.

2. That organisms representative of those associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and soap water, were not killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

These reports are based on tests performed on handkerchiefs in the laboratories of Dr. Berrum Feuer, Chicago bacteriologist.

Kleenex is more comfortable as well as safer. The tissues are incredibly soft and gentle. Actually clothlike, so absorbent there's no chance for irritation.

Children prefer Kleenex. And it's better for them. They should

ON GREENS

If your salad is made of greens or light vegetables, select a dressing light enough to let the flavors of the salad assert themselves. Bachelor Club Dressing would be an excellent choice.

To make Bachelor Club Dressing: Beat together well eight tablespoons of Wesson Oil, two tablespoons of vinegar, a half teaspoon of salt, and a teaspoon of mustard and paprika. Then stir in two tablespoons of finely chopped onions.

ON FRUITS

Fruits, on the other hand, don't go very well with a tart, sharp dressing. They respond best to a dressing to which a little cheese or some nuts have been added. Or one that is slightly sweetened... like Bar-le-Duc Dressing.

To make Bar-le-Duc Dressing: One teaspoon of salt, one-quarter teaspoon of pepper, six tablespoons of Wesson Oil, two tablespoons of lemon juice and six tablespoons of a jelly that is not too firm... such as Bar-le-Duc. Beat mixture with a fork until thoroughly blended.

ON SEAFOOD

If your salad is going to be something hearty and substantial, made with seafoods, serve it with Lemon-aise. The flavor of the salad will be improved, however, if first you marinate the ingredients.

*To marinate: Mix six tablespoons Wesson Oil and two tablespoons of vinegar. Add a teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon of pepper. Pour over seafood and set aside in the refrigerator for several hours. Serve with Lemon-aise.

Sugar in tea salt in Bouillon

IMAGINE putting sugar on everything that came to the table... on meats as well as in tea. It would be all wrong, wouldn't it? We select the seasoning to suit the dish. And so it is with salads. So many different things are used to make salads no one dressing is suitable for all of them. There is a different salad dressing for each different kind of salad. So...

mix a dressing appropriate to the salad

The flavors of greens and light vegetables suggest a tart dressing such as Bachelor Club or Vinaigrette Dressing. Fruits respond best to a sweet dressing such as Bar-le-Duc... or one made with cheese or nuts. Seafoods, however, taste best when they are marinated* in French Dressing and served with Lemon-aise.

It suggests the right kind of salads for each occasion and the dressings that go best with each kind of salad. We will be very happy to send you your copy if you will send us your name and address. ## The New Way Doctors Use For Fat A Simple Gland Food

Modern doctors no longer advise starvation diet to the overweight. Nor drugs to attack the fat. Science has found that a great cause of excess fat lies in a weakened gland. Thus comes a scant supply of a secretion which largely controls nutrition. Too much food goes to fat, too little to fuel and energy.

Doctors the world over now supply that lack, with the very factor long employed in Marmola prescription tablets.

Marmola is prepared by a famous medical laboratory, to supply the right factors at a low cost so all may have the benefit. People have used it for 24 years—millions of boxes of it. Users have told others the results, and multitudes have thus attained the normal figures all desire.

No secrets about it. A book in each box gives the form and tells you how and why it acts. As the pounds go, there comes new joy in living. Just because the body gets a factor that it needs.

Marmola costs only $1 a box at your drug store. Go get it and watch the results. Do that in justice to yourself. Do it because so many folks around you have benefited by it. Then tell others who need this help. Go start today.

A tiny tablet of Midol ends periodic pain in five to seven minutes. Not even discomfort need now be experienced at such times. Your first trial of this marvelous product of specialists will prove the truth of this glorious news. Midol is not a narcotic and is perfectly harmless to use, but it acts directly on the organs affected and relieves completely and immediately in even severe cases. And Midol costs but fifty cents! Many have found Midol the quickest relief for headaches, neuritis, neuritis, and other pain.—(adv.)

Mardi Gras To Be Staged Friday By Pupils of North Ave. School

Athletic Association of North Ave. Presbyterian school will give its yearly athletic animation in the school gym Friday afternoon and evening, April 10. This year a Mardi Gras is being staged for the first time, and is planned to be most entertaining. Everyone is asked to come masked and in costume. Special interest will be centered upon the crowning of "Rex," in the afternoon and evening, and a queen to rule with him over the festival.

In the afternoon, a Junior High King will be crowned, Dorothy Calloway being the eighth grade candidate, and Edith Hills representing the seventh. Voting will continue until 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, at which time the girl having the highest number of votes will be named queen. The eighth, seventh and sixth grades will each enter a float, represented by Martha Gentry, Marion Mobley and Barbara McGaughey, respectively. When the judges have decided which class float is prettiest, the girl on that float will become queen of Mardi Gras. The newly elected king and queen will lead a parade composed of everyone present, around the hall, after which a prize will be given to the boy, and one to the girl, in the best costume.

A high school girl will be king in the evening, and what the virgin is over at 8 o'clock, one of the following candidates will wear the crown: Kit Hartrampf, senior; Marion Over-shiner, junior; Louise Brown, sophomore; and Jean Woods, freshman. Each of the four classes is planning a float, Louise Hancock being the central figure on the senior's and Mary Rabin on the junior's, while Mary Malone and Anna Belle Watson will represent the sophomore and freshman classes, respectively. The girl in the float which is judged the best, will reign with the king over the hall. An excellent orchestra will furnish music

Burgess Children's Stories

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

There's joy in simply drawing near To places that we hold so dear.

—Mrs. Yellow Wing.

Mrs. Yellow Wing the Flicker had been moving up from the Sunny South in a leisurely manner. She had spent a very comfortable winter and now she was headed toward home. At first she was in no hurry, but as she got nearer to the Green Forest, the Green Meadows, the Old Orchard and the Laughing Brook she began to hurry a bit.

At last, very early one morning she reached the farm south of Farmer Brown's farm and stopped to look for breakfast. She was busy catching ants when she heard a sound that caused her to lift her head and listen intently. It was a distant rat-tat-tat-tat. It ended and Mrs. Yellow Wing bobbed her head. "That's Yellow Wing," said she most decidedly. "That's Yellow Wing. I would know his drumming anywhere. There is no one like him for drumming. I wish he would drum again."

Then another thought popped into her head and it wasn't a pleasant one. Could it be that some other Flicker had arrived ahead of her and that Yellow Wing was drumming for the benefit of a stranger? The mere thought made Mrs. Yellow Wing jealous. Yes, sir, it did just that thing. I take very little to make some people jealous. Almost always it is their own thoughts that are the cause.

Right away Mrs. Yellow Wing forgot she hadn't finished breakfast. "It is high time I reached home," said she. "Yes, sir, it is high time I reached home. I have been too long on the way. He ought not to be as happy as all that without me there. If he is drumming to some one else I'll have something to say about it. I will, indeed. He has no business to be drumming to anybody but me. There is too much joy in that drumming of his. It doesn't sound as if he is homesone, and it ought to. If there is another Flicker making eyes at him, he'll hear from me. Indeed she will! The idea of Yellow Wing daring to drum to any one but me!"

With this she took to her wings and headed straight for Farmer Brown's. As she drew near she took care to keep out of sight as much as possible. She flew from tree to tree, keeping behind the trunk of each and peering around it in all directions. She wasn't looking for Yellow Wing. She knew by his drumming that he was over back of Farmer Brown's house. She was looking for some other Flicker to whom he might be drumming. She was jealous, and growing more jealous every minute.

So she reached the Old Orchard. She went through every tree in it. No rival did she find, for no rival was there. She flew to the Green Forest and went all along the edge of it and a little way into it, pecking and peering and finding no one. Still she wasn't satisfied. Jealousy dies hard.

"No, no," she said over and over to herself, "he wouldn't drum like that if he didn't know there is some one to listen. I'll find out who it is and I won't let him know I have arrived until I do."

Foolish Mrs. Yellow Wing. But jealous people always are foolish.

Irishman's Attempt To Fool Court Fails

NEW YORK, April 8.—(UP)—As jurors in Brooklyn county court were winding up the day today the judge said that as the final hours of the passport feast began at sundown those who were Jews could go and have Thursday.

Several men started for the door. Harry Feinberg, court attendant, looked closely at one and motioned him back to his seat.

"Sure, you might have kept your mouth shut," said the juror.

Now, that is a natural situation. An inherent curiosity, or whimsical comment by the Anglo-Saxon temperament, causes people to want to know just what is going on in the world right before they go to bed.

And cannot be denied that once one falls under the spell of Amos 'n' Andy, it is absolutely necessary to keep abreast of their delightfully entertaining confusion.

All of which reminds me of Shipwreck Kelly. Thoroughly unsympathetic with the idea of flagpole-sitting, I laughed in my heart at the few years ago when I heard of the ill luck that befell the well-known Kelly when he set out to create a lot of public interest. But today I feel very much in the same situation as Shipwreck himself must have felt in May, 1927. Kelly had climbed to the top of his particular flagstaff and a few thousand were gazing at him when word flashed that Lindbergh had arrived in Paris.

SO THE CROWD forgot Shipwreck altogether. But he kept sitting. And right when he broke his previous sitting record and had encouraged another crowd to gaze at him, Lindbergh came home. Shipwreck was lost in the shuffle.

And if you want to have that "lost-in-the-shuffle" feeling try taking the same radio "spot" that Amos 'n' Andy are on. You have the same sensations before the microphone as a man alone in the middle of the Gobi would experience in shouting for a cold glass of Pilsener. You may be informing the microphone that a terrific calamity has befallen a nearby people, but they are sure that at that very moment the living room legion is guffawing over Andy's current "rehabilitation."

BUT I'VE FOUND it isn't so bad. For one thing, you would be surprised at the number of listeners who do not keep up with the famous pair from day to day. And a large number are those who "can't wait," and who get them through WLW earlier in the evening. At any rate, I know much, I feel lonely at the mike, but if I put the wrong accent on a word, say "legislative," someone writes in to inform me the correct should be on the first syllable.

Now to answer publicly Mrs. Johnson and the others who have asked whether something cannot be done about it. There certainly can, and will be. On April 26 daylight saving time will go into effect in New York and other cities which observe it. If Amos 'n' Andy follow their usual daylight saving schedule they will go on the air at 9:15, Atlanta time. At the moment I have no definite information as far in advance as the stockholders meeting. In closing, Mr. Gifford says: "I take three Atlanta papers but never consult any radio page except that of your paper. Thank you, Mr. Gifford. I'll keep it interesting; and if I don't, just let me know."

Tonight there are three programs that merit special mention here. One of them, over Columbia, through WGST, is Toscha Seidel and His Orchestra. Accompanied by the piano by Herbert Jaffe, Seidel, the noted violinist, will offer Kreisler's arrangements of Couperin's beautiful melody, "La Féculeuse."

His recital between 9:30 and 10 o'clock. A concert orchestra will assist Seidel in other offerings, including the "Triumphal March" of the Bayards, and oriental dance numbers from Delibes' "Lakme."

THROUGH WSB at 8 o'clock this evening the National Broadcasting Company is bringing to you, vicariously, Washington Irving, father of American literature, in the role of honor guest at the Arco birthday party. This is the type of program that I think of as being "different," containing originality, sparkling with

BY BILL KEY,
Radio Reporter.

Good morning, Everybody! YOU'VE ALL HEARD of Shipwreck Kelly, the flagpole-sitter. He has appeared in Atlanta; and I remember seeing hundreds, or maybe thousands, staring open-mouthed at him as he perched atop a flagstaff on one of the downtown buildings a few years ago. But I am reminded of Shipwreck Kelly from an entirely different reason than mere mental meandering.

Wednesday night, right after I had come off the air, a Mrs. Johnson telephoned to inquire of me a question many people have asked. "That is right," something he does about The Constitution going on the air at the same time Amos 'n' Andy are doing their nightly stunt."

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, 15 points down to 9.40; receipts 220; shipments 184; stock 162,651.

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP)—Cotton was lower today under further liquidation of old long accounts combined with local, southern and foreign selling, which was influenced by relatively easy markets in Liverpool and Alexandria and more favorable weather in the south. After selling off to 10.30 or 10 points net lower, July contracts rallied to 10.48 on covering and trade buying but weakened again under renewed liquidation, closing at 10.15. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 17 to 20 points.

The opening was steady 6 to 9 points lower in response to lower Liverpool cables and the further decline in Egyptian cotton at Alexandria. Initial offerings were quite readily absorbed by trade buying and covering, but the selling continued and prices worked lower after the early demand had been supplied. A little more southern selling here was regarded as suggesting that the advance of the planting season was bringing out freer offerings from the interior, and there was considerable May liquidation. Part of this was attributed to transferring or long contracts from May to later deliveries, and it was reported that brokers who sometimes operate for co-operative interests were among the sellers of the May position.

Wall Street selling was in evidence during the day, as if influenced by the action of the stock market and there was some selling here for foreign account during the early trading. May broke to 10.12 and October to 10.68, making net declines of 19 to 21 points on the active months. These prices brought in a little more trade buying and covering, and about half the loss was recovered but the market weakened again in the last half hour, closing within 2 or 3 points of the lowest on most positions.

Reports of fair and warmer weather in the south may have been one of some of the selling in connection with the weakness abroad, and reports of a continued lull in the demand for cotton cloth.

Liverpool cables said the decline in that market was due to continental and Bombay selling and reported a small business in Manchester with yarns pressing money. Egyptian cotton futures in Alexandria were 10 to 25 points lower. Exports today 17,041, making 6,778,188 so far this season. Receipts 1,212; United States port stocks 3,946,215.

NEW ORLEANS SPOTS

OFF 17 TO 13 POINTS

NEW ORLEANS, April 8.—(AP)—Greater activity and broader fluctuations featured the cotton market here today. Prices declined a dollar a bale during the morning, and a net gain of 22 points for the day. The same interests control Cord Corporation, stock of which is listed on the curb, Cord stock is also reported in increased demand, owing to the improved demand for Cord cars and the increased business being done by the Auburn, which the Cord corporation absorbed May had declined to 10.00, July to 10.35 and October to 10.65 or 20 to 21 points below the close of yesterday.

Near noon the decline attracted good trade buying and satisfied shorts covered freely, causing prices to rally and by early afternoon May had recovered to 10.23, July to 10.48 and October to 10.79, up 13 to 14 points from the lows.

The market was rather unsettled in the late trading and lost a good part of the midday recovery on a renewal of liquidation and although prices rallied for a time they closed lower, closing easier with May at 10.18, down 11 points net for the day, July to 10.43, down 12 points net and October to 10.74, also down 12 points net.

NEW YORK, April 8.—(NANA)

For the first time in 10 days the general stock market showed signs of a rallying tendency today. There was no favorable news to accentuate a better feeling except a general belief among the professional operators that with many stocks leading at a premium and lending flat, the market was very much oversold and entitled to a rally at least. Within 24 hours favorable news will begin to appear with regard to improvement in the motor industry and increased tonnage booked by the United States Steel Corporation and this news may start a rally in the general list.

It also develops that the critical real estate security market situation has been averted by the timely assistance of two prominent New York banking institutions.

NEW HIGH FOR AUBURN.

Auburn Auto continued a feature of strength during the greater part of the session and closed at a new high price for this movement, with a net gain of 22 points for the day. The same interests control Cord Corporation, stock of which is listed on the curb, Cord stock is also reported in increased demand, owing to the improved demand for Cord cars and the increased business being done by the Auburn, which the Cord corporation absorbed May had declined to 10.00, July to 10.35 and October to 10.65 or 20 to 21 points below the close of yesterday.

Near noon the decline attracted good trade buying and satisfied shorts covered freely, causing prices to rally and by early afternoon May had recovered to 10.23, July to 10.48 and October to 10.79, up 13 to 14 points from the lows.

The market was rather unsettled in the late trading and lost a good part of the midday recovery on a renewal of liquidation and although prices rallied for a time they closed lower, closing easier with May at 10.18, down 11 points net for the day, July to 10.43, down 12 points net and October to 10.74, also down 12 points net.

Port receipts 3,016; for week 22,498; for season 8,470,624; last season 8,117,024. Exports 17,041; for week 60,234; for season 5,321,484; last season 5,850,818. Port stocks 3,728,543; last year 1,851,496. Commercial shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 73,607; last year 106,724. Spot sales at southern markets 5,793; last year 2,873.

trois. Opinion among the leading bulls on Auburn is that the latter stock will eventually be absorbed in its entirety by the Cord Corporation.

GENERAL MOTORS BUSINESS.

Within 24 hours the General Motors Corporation is expected to make a statement in which considerable attention will be directed to the excellent business done by the corporation during the month of March. It is also understood that the General Motors has been doing a very gratifying business since April. Auburn Auto and General Motors are doing the biggest business of the automobile companies whose shares are listed on the stock exchange.

CIGARET PRICE ADVANCE.

Now that official announcement has been made that the retail prices of certain brands of cigarettes will be raised on Friday by two important chain tobacco stores, rumors are current that this move is preliminary to an advance in wholesale prices. This would also account for the persistent and confident buying of the tobacco stocks in the face of the recent selling in other parts of the stock list. The biggest manufacturers of cigarettes are the American Tobacco Company, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco, Liggett & Myers and P. Lorillard. Because of the importance of these companies in the tobacco industry, their stocks have naturally been the most favored of the tobacco shares.

The Iron Age reported a decrease of about 2 per cent in steel operations for the last week but the unfilled tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corporation to be published on Friday is expected to show a substantial increase by reason of the large orders placed by Radio City for structural steel and the orders placed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in March.

The market for the first time in 10 days. This would indicate that some investment capital is coming out of the market and that the market is a buyers' strike on in the stock market. It is hoped that favorable industrial news to be announced this week will start a rally at least.

Consolidated Gas is reported to be awaiting a favorable bond market on which to offer $60,000,000 of 4-1/2 per cent bonds.

FUNERAL TODAY FOR MRS. DAVIS

Friends To Pay Tribute to Atlanta Church and Civic Leader.

Attended by those whose deep friendship her long years of devotion, charm and grace had won, funeral services will be held this afternoon for Mrs. Archibald H. Davis, civic, church and social leader, who died suddenly Tuesday as the result of injuries received in a minor automobile accident.

Services will be conducted at the residence, 1490 Peachtree street, at 3:30 o'clock, the Rev. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, officiating. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

The wife of one of the leaders of the Atlanta bar, pallbearers attended, Davis, services will number representative members of that profession, including Lowry Arnold, former Governor John M. Slaton, Frank Armstrong, Reuben Arnold, George Westmoreland, Walter S. Dillon, Waldo Mallory, Charles Orme, Jr., and Dr. Marion McCall, Hull.

Honorary Escort.
Mrs. Thornton Fincher, president of the Atlanta Woman's Club, of which Mrs. Davis was a charter member, Wednesday afternoon announced that a delegation of club members would be appointed to attend the funeral. In addition, members of the congregation of North Avenue Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Davis was a charter member; members of the Every Saturday Club, of the Atlanta committee, Colonial Dames, and of the Woman's Society of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, will attend.

Mrs. Davis, unexpected death resulted from cerebral injuries received while she was en route from Atlanta to Savannah to attend the unveiling by the Colonial Dames of a tablet marking the site of Georgia's first newspaper. Near Danville, the chauffeur of her car brought the machine to an abrupt stop to avoid striking low-swinging telephone wires which crossed the road. Mrs. Davis, riding with Mrs. J. T. Orme, of Atlanta, was pitched forward rather violently, striking her head against the front of the automobile.

Collapse After Accident.
Immediately following the mishap she got out of the car, and asked her chauffeur to get her a glass of water. The driver went to a nearby farmhouse, but when he returned with the water Mrs. Davis had collapsed. Mrs. Orme received only minor bruises. The chauffeur drove the machine on to Dublin, where physicians who examined Mrs. Davis found she had suffered a cerebral hemorrhage. Death had resulted en route to Dublin.

Mrs. Davis for 42 years had been active in church and civic movements in Atlanta. She was prominently connected with the cultural social affairs, and was beloved of a host of friends. A native of Ohio, she was born in Elyria, in 1882. During the World War she held executive posts in the Young Women's Christian Association movement, and it was due largely to her initiative and interest that the Atlanta branch of the Y. W. C. A. experienced its growth and expansion. For many years she occupied the presidency of the local branch.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Davis is survived by three sons: Archibald H. Davis, Jr., of Newcastle, Pa.; N. K. Davis, and J. T. Tolpelt Davis, of Atlanta.

The chief executive requested the governors of the states to declare May Day as a time for consideration of all matters for the health of children. In this connection he called attention to the "children's charter" formulated by the White House conference on child health and protection which was called largely as a result of the president's interest in child welfare.

Glee Club of University Of Georgia Here Tonight

The quartette of the University of Georgia Glee Club, appearing tonight at the Erlanger theater. Front, left to right, E. Blair Proctor, Jr., of Atlanta, and Ralph Rosenzweig, Savannah. Rear, left to right, Malcolm Lockhart, Decatur, and Walter Cornett, Athens.

The University of Georgia Glee Club, under the direction of Hugh Hodgson, director of music at the Athens university, will make its annual Atlanta appearance tonight. The performance will be given at the Erlanger theater and will start promptly at 8:30.

The club this year is said to be better than ever before and reports from towns where it has already performed are that the entire production is of professional caliber, with collegiate enthusiasm thrown in to make it greater. The state, particularly the Athens university has produced before.

"This year's organization is outstanding," the manager of the city auditorium at Savannah wired after a performance there before a capacity audience. "It is certain to be greeted with enthusiasm everywhere in Georgia, and the state, particularly the alumni of the university, should be proud of this splendid company of players. Cannot recommend this attraction too highly."

There are a number of performances in the 1931 club who have enjoyed professional experience on the stage. Loring Gilmore, who plays vibraphone, xylophone solos and sing first tenor in the chorus, played the same instruments for two years in vaudeville, prior to his entry to the university. He is also the feature of a short act between scenes of the program, in which a burlesque ventriloquist act is portrayed with Ralph Rosenzweig, another member of the chorus, taking the part of the dummy. Gilmore played on Keith, Loew, Publix and Pantages vaudeville circuits.

After the close of the concert tonight, members of the glee club and alumni of the university will be entertained at a dance and supper at the Studio Arts building, Peachtree and Fourteenth streets.
